

As health care shifts to value-based practices, clinicians are well positioned to lead the charge in creating better patient outcomes without placing undue strain on the system. One solution lies in optimizing care coordination.

Heather O'Sullivan, Chief Clinical Officer at naviHealth, and Mary Beth Kingston, Chief Nursing Officer at Advocate Aurora Health, discuss how clinicians can lead this shift.

Read the full story on Nurse.com.