

Bundled payments represent one of the biggest opportunities to reform the healthcare system. The results and studies that have been made public are promising, showing improvements in patient health and reductions in costs across the healthcare system.

To date, much of the discussion around bundled payments has focused on hospitals. But large physician groups, post-acute care (PAC) facilities—including skilled nursing facilities (SNFs)—and health plans also have opportunities to gain in a value-based world.

Read the full article here.