

The senior care industry has faced significant challenges in the last year, and in many cases, practices that worked a year ago are now insufficient or ineffective. As the industry continues to rebuild and move forward, innovation has become more important than ever.

Jay LaBine, Chief Medical Officer of naviHealth, explains that innovation will play a crucial role in reassessing and moving forward in the senior care industry.

Read his latest feature in i Advance Senior Care.